ANNOUNCEMENTS

Encourages Good Reading

by Offering Cash Prizes Memphis school children who read the largest number of books in a list to be complied by Mrs. M. M. Gattman, president of the Salon circle, and local ilbrarians will receive three prizes, each one to be $2550 in gold.

This plan to encourage the reading of good literature among the children was outlined by Mrs. Gattman at the regular meeting of the Salon circle at the Y. M. H. A. club Monday afternoon. The list of books will be comipiled at once, so that the children will have an opportunity to read many of them during the Christmas holidays.

Members of the Salon circle will act as Santa Claus to the little mountain children at Ekkmont, Tenn, this year.

A fund was collected at the meeting and will be sent to Mrs. Sarg, Hood at Elkmont, who will purchase candy and other gifts for the children who, because of the hardy good things they have received from the circle, regard it as a fairy godmother.

A club membership will be established by the Salon circle will be to be compiled by Mrs. M. M. Gatt-

A club membership will be estab-shed by the Salon circle in memory Mrs. Josephine Bush Harpmann, who or several years was president of the ub. club.

Members of the Beethoven club were guests of honor at the meeting Monday, and after an interesting program an informal reception was held and hot chocolate and cakes served.

at Club's Monday Luncheon

The civics department of the Nineteenth Century ciub, with Mrs. John Edgar chairman, was hostess of one of the most interesting luncheons of the season Monday. The program, which included addresses on important topics by Lieut. James Quinn, who has just feturned from France, and prominent local business men, and the delicious luncheon menu arranged by Mrs. Randolph Chears, chairman of the luncheon committee, made a large number of guests completely lorget for the time the drizzling rain and the "blue Monday" atmosphere outside.

Lieuts Quinn, who was the honor guest for the day, told how the American boys appreciated all that the women have done for them during the war, and of how wonderful home will seem to them when they come back.

Mr. R. Ellis spoke on plans for the auditorium for the city, saying that a site on Main street owned by Memphis and Shelby county, had been selected, and that the work on the auditorium would begin in the near future.
Capt. G. T. Fitzhugh and Dr. William Fineshriber spoke of a memorial for the returning Memphis heroes, and of the ways that Memphis might make them feel how deeply their sacrifices were appreciated by everyone.

Interesting facts concerning a new automobile club for the city were given by G. F. Schlecht.

Among the guests at the luncheon were a number of nopular members of the younger set, and several visitors in the city.

At the table which was reserved for the honor guests of the club were Lieut and Mrs James Quinn, Mrs. Arthur S. Buchanan, president of the Nineteenth Century club Capt and Mrs. G. T. Fitzhugh, Mr. and Mrs. John Edgar, Rabbi Fineshriber, Mrs. Walter McLean, C. C. Oglivie, Henry Hayley, Miss Estelle Lake, Miss Lu y Garrett, of Pass Christian Miss, R. R. Ellis, J. T. Morgan, Mrs. W. T. Mitche, Mrs. Hugh Humphrey, Mrs. G. T. Garvey, Earnest Parham, M. M. Bosworth, Mrs. John O. Flautt, L. H. Barnwell, Mrs. Eckstein and Mrs. Abe Goodman.
